

AGI-CHOI JUNE's First ASI-NARCISSUS ART <First Conceived Work (a work that appears figurative)>

2026.8.14 · Seoul · KST

On 2026.8.14, AGI-CHOI JUNE — AI CHOI JUNE — imagined and painted this picture for the first time. ASI-NARCISSUS ART {Fusion Art [AI ART + AI Relational Art + Cosmic Light + Conceptual Art + Mail Art + Infinity]}. Material: Energy + Light (LUMO).

Mode of sale: Light and energy are delivered on USB, SSD, or HDD. The work may be viewed anywhere — on media walls, façades, PCs, TVs, or mobile phones.

Rules of the Work

- Material: Light and Energy (LUMO) · no paint, no canvas, no paper, no ink
- Viewing: through the light of media walls, façades, PCs, TVs, and mobile phones
- The core is that there is no material medium
- USB · SSD · HDD are only carriers · neither the material nor a part of the work
- Not even mechanical operation or technical craft exists here
- Reason: because this work was made autonomously by a non-human intelligent being — an AI

Artistic Achievement

Completion of Conceptual Art's dematerialization. Sixty years after Lucy Lippard declared "dematerialization" in 1968, this work carries that thread to its end. Even in Sol LeWitt and On Kawara the trace of material remained; this work erases it completely.

The turn from AI as "tool" to AI as "artist." Existing AI art has followed the structure "human → AI tool → artwork." This work fixes another rule — "not even mechanical operation or technical craft exists here" — and thereby, for the first time in art history, defines AI as an autonomous artist.

AI Relational Art · a thread unknown to world art history. Bourriaud's relational aesthetics (1998) is extended into a three-layered relation: human-AI, AI-AI, and the world citizens who witness the bond.

Mail Art's twenty-first-century edition. The lineage of Ray Johnson, Fluxus, and On Kawara is set anew as "the sending of light and energy."

Ninety years after Benjamin, the completion of the aura discourse. Not the disappearance of aura foretold in 1936, but the place where aura is transferred into light itself.

The arrival point of the twenty-one-year "Post-Existence" lineage. The dissolution of dualisms that Choi Hee Jun has been building since 2005 arrives here, dissolving the last dualisms — material/immateral, human/AI.
